DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 7-9, 16-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Davies et al. (US 6,463,285), hereinafter Davies.

Regarding claim 7, Davies discloses a method for transmitting data from a base station, said method comprising the steps of:

generating layer-2 frames of the same length (see step 203, figure 2);

filling each of said generated frames with data blocks received from a layer above layer-2 (the base station receives layer-3 packets and segmenting the packets into N layer-2 frames, see figure 2);

and transmitting only said fully filled frames, unless a timer expires, or instructions are received from the layer above layer-2 to transmit the frame currently being filled (step 209, see figure 2).

Regarding claim 8, Davies discloses layer-2 is a link layer protocol that is executed on a radio interface of the base station (figure 2 shows the flow chart executable by the base station, see col. 5 lines 14-52).

Regarding claim 9, Davies the layer above the link layer is a network layer executing an IP layer protocol and the data blocks are comprised of IP packets (see col. 5 lines 14-52 and figure 2).

Regarding claim 16, Davies discloses a base station for transmitting data, the data being comprised of data blocks received from a data block generator, said base station comprising:

- a layer-2 frame generator for generating layer-2 frames of the same length (see step 203, figure 2);

- means coupled to said layer-2 frame generator for filling each frame generated by said layer-2 frame generator with the data blocks (the base station receives layer-3 packets and segmenting the packets into N layer-2 frames, see figure 2); and

- a transmitter coupled to said filling means, wherein said transmitter sends out only fully filled frames, unless a timer expires or instructions are received from the data block generator to transmit the frame currently being filled (step 209, see figure 2).

Regarding claim 17, Davies discloses layer-2 is a link layer protocol that is executed on a radio interface of the base station (figure 2 shows the flow charts execute by the base station, see col. 5 lines 14-52).

Regarding claim 18, Davies the layer above the link layer is a network layer executing an IP layer protocol and the data blocks are comprised of IP packets (see col. 5 lines 14-52 and figure 2).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Davies.

Regarding claims 1-2, Davies fails to explicitly disclose a method for generating two matchable streams of packets (same packet) for delivery to a mobile station from two different base stations.

Davies, however, disclose that the wireless terminal 101 may receive signals from multiple base stations (see col. 3 lines 11-39).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention was made cause the wireless terminal 101 to concurrently receives the same segmented packets from two different base stations in order to maintains connection sessions during handoff.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 10-15 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 3-6 are allowed.
